March Highlights

1: TAFINA Finspace with the Bank of Tanzania (BoT)

TAFINA had an incredibly insightful and engaging session with the Bank of Tanzania (BoT), where our members had the opportunity to openly discuss the BoT's key initiatives TIPS, TanQR, and the Sandbox. The conversations included onboarding timelines, key challenges, and opportunities for collaboration.

We are immensely grateful to the BoT team for their time, transparency, and openness in fostering meaningful dialogue. The session was filled with valuable insights, constructive discussions, and clear takeaways for the industry.

One of the key outcomes of this engagement is that it has paved the way for further discussions with the Bank, where we can submit opportunities and industry feedback, ensuring that fintech voices are heard.

At TAFINA, we remain committed to advocating for a more inclusive, competitive, and innovative fintech ecosystem in Tanzania, driving financial inclusion and industry growth.

2: Empowering Women in Fintech: Breaking Barriers & Driving Innovation

As we celebrate and come to the end of Women's Month, we recognize the growing impact of women in fintech—driving innovation, financial inclusion, and economic transformation. Across Africa, women-led fintechs are reshaping the industry by addressing gaps in access to finance, developing inclusive digital solutions, and championing gender equity in financial services.

Despite progress, challenges remain—women entrepreneurs often face funding gaps, limited access to networks, and regulatory hurdles. At TAFINA, we are committed to fostering an ecosystem where women-led fintechs thrive. Through strategic partnerships, mentorship, and engagement opportunities, we aim to amplify women's voices and ensure they play a central role in shaping the future of fintech.

This Women's Month and throughout the years, let's continue to invest in, support, and celebrate the incredible women transforming the financial landscape.
